A Supernova Constraint on F-theory

Sebastian Vander Ploeg Fallon*[1], Liam Mcallister[2], James Halverson[3,4], and David Marsh[5]

[1]Cornell University [New York] – Ithaca, New York 14853, United States
[2]Cornell University [New York] – Ithaca, New York 14853, United States
[3]Department of Physics, Northeastern University – Boston, Massachusetts 02115, United States
[4]NSF AI Institute for Artificial Intelligence and Fundamental Interactions – United States
[5]King's College London – Strand Campus, London WC2R 2LS, United Kingdom

Abstract

In this talk, we discuss constraints due to the QCD axion on the moduli space of 4D F-theory models. We show that weakly curved F-theory models with h11 > 10,000 that realize QCD on a non-higgsable cluster are in tension with the duration of the observed neutrino burst from SN1987a.

Keywords: Axions, F, theory

*Speaker